This report is going to be about ~~our~~ school museum and problems concerning it.

Our school possesses a massive collection of old tech and tech-related objects, such as cameras, typing machines, computer components and many others as well as information about it.

Because of the limitations of it being a school museum, there is no special place for it and it is currently located in one of the computer classes. Because of it many people do not know about it, the only ones aware of being the students who have classes there. Another issue is that it is not properly organised or structured, so students only look at it rapidly in passing. They are not interested in interacting with the museum because of the difficulties in understanding the connection between the objects or topic behind their placement.

To enhance the museum and a level of students' engagement with it I suggest making a few changes. Firstly, it is important to let people know about its existence. That can be achieved by making an announcement or placing information in school halls. Secondly, what needs to be done is rearranging items, so that objects connected with each other or relating to same historical periods were placed together. That would make it easier for students to access needed information and use it for their education.

I hope that offered recommendations will be useful for the museum's improvement and the output of the change will be positive.
