We, as a school, pride ourselves on our history. Over the years we have amassed enough items for a museum. However, I believe it is not used efficiently.

The museum, ~~however~~ displays our awards, achievements, our general history and the history of different parts of our school. The museum is on the first floor, where hundreds of students go through every day. And yet, the museum stays almost fully empty.

One of the problems is the limitation of the information given and its presentation. It is reduced to the technical and frankly boring parts. Another problem is that the museum has not been remodeled in decades. The rapidly decaying wood and the faded paint are not the best way to attract visitors.

I strongly recommend rethinking what to display and how to enhance students' engagement. It would be a lot more interesting to read about the building's history in presentation form rather than a plain text about an old ~~classroom~~ classroom which is now used for storage. Another way of maximizing the output is to refurbish or even rebuild the museum. New technology and furniture would benefit everyone, including the teachers.

To sum it all up, I want to say that our museum has a lot of potential and I am sure everyone would love to see it renovated.
